WOMAN BIGAMIST PLEAD GUILTY

Goes with Consort to Halifax Jail to Await January Term of Court.

TWO VAGRANTS DRAW JAIL SENTENCES

The most important case to go through the Recorder's Court since the Sharpe brothers were sent on to Halifax was tried this week when Addie Penfield, alias Addie McDonald alias Addie McGee pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy and was held for the January term of Halifax Superior Court under three hundred dollars bond.

Evidence showed that the defendant had married Dave McGee on October 23, 1921, having previously married Jack McDonald on May 6, 1921, without having gone through the formalities of the divorce court.

Dave McGee was also held on a charge of immoral relations with Mrs. McDonald, evidence being brought out that at the time he consummated his marriage with Mrs. McDonald he knew of her former marriage and her divorceless state. It was three hundred dollar bond in his case, and both defendants in default were committed to jail to await trial.

Moses Sims, colored, charged with the larceny of flour, cakes and tobacco from the Rosemary Supply Company, plead guilty and left immediately for Halifax jail, not having $150.00 in loose change about him.

R. L. Cooper, driving without sufficient lights and with muffler cut out, paid a fine of $5.00 and costs.

Kenneth Saunders, colored, vagrancy, drew down a real vacation of thirty days in jail. Suspicion pointed strongly to Kenneth as being the negro who frightened several housekeepers in the Roanoke Mills village shortly before his arrest, but none of the witnesses could positively identify him—it was evidently Kenneth's lucky day.

W. A. House, white, charged with vagrancy, put up a vehement denial, but was found guilty and also allotted thirty days to think it over.

J. W. Graham, assaulting and choking little Willie Haislip, was fined $10.00 and costs.

Faulkner Clary, shooting a little girl in the eye with a bean shooter, was found guilty after two sets of directly conflicting witnesses had been examined, and fined $1.00 and costs and ordered to take up some lucrative employment at once.

MR. JOHN THOMAS WELLS

Mr. John Thomas Wells, a well known citizen of Rosemary for ten years died in the Roanoke Rapids Hospital Monday night after an illness of several days. He was forty six years old. A devoted wife and four children survive him. Funeral services were held by Rev. E. N. Harrison, in the absence of his pastor Mr. Carter, at the home on Three Hundred Street Wednesday afternoon at two thirty. Interment was made in Cedarwood Cemetery. Mr. Wells was very highly regarded by the people of the community and his friends realize that he is to be greatly missed. He was a member of the Baptist Church and of two secret orders, the Junior Order U. A. M. and the Woodmen of the World.

"The Man of the Forest" At Peoples Theatre

Do you wish to blot out for a while the everyday facts of life, and tread a golden path of adventure—utterly forgetting the world and its cares in the thrills, the romance, the pathos, the humor and the breath of wide spaces and strange lands from a Zane Grey wonder-book, in a magnificent photoplay by Benjamin B. Hampton? Then drop in at the Peoples theatre, and see "The Man of the Forest," the newest Hodgkinson release, which will be shown there on Thursday Jan. 12, 1922.

The "Man of the Forest" is the latest photoplay of a Zane Grey novel, and it brings to life on the screen one of the author's latest and best-selling books. It is another powerful Benjamin B. Hampton-Zane Grey combination of the past, "The U. P. Trail," "Riders of the Dawn" and "Desert Gold," which Hodgkinson gave the theatre patrons of the world.

A powerful cast of the screen's best artists is seen not only in the principal roles, but in every role, no matter how small, so that each of the author's story characters gets the benefit of a splendid interpretation. Carl Gantvoort has the title role, "Mitt Dale," Claire Adams, Robert McKim, Jean Hersholt, and Eugenia Gilbert also have wonderful roles, while Fredrick Starr, Charlotte Pierce, Frank Hayes, Harry Lorraine and Charles Murphy contribute great work in the most important secondary characterizations.

In the naming of the cast of "The Man of the Forest," one must not forget three other actors of much importance, though not famous by their individual names. One is a large mountain lion. Another is a grizzly bear, and the third is a big dog. Each one has its acting part, the lion best of all, perhaps, for, like the others, it is the pet of Mitt Dale, and it is seen doing such things as leaping from the roof of a house upon the "Snake Anson" of the story. It occupies a tunk in Dale's cabin, and with Las Vegas (Frank Hayes), who is afraid of his friend's pet, it figures in some splendid comedy scenes.

"The Man of the Forest" is a clean, wholesome drama of modern outdoor life. It is thrills and suspense from beginning to end, with some startling situations that are fresh to the screen. Pathos and humor, red-blooded thrills, and tender love scenes succeed one another and blend into the whole, making this big special photoplay one of the finest adventure documents the screen has ever offered.

Mr. Hampton was assisted in the production of "The Man of the Forest" by William H. Clifford, Howard Hickman, Eliot Howe, and E. Richard Schayer; Joseph Durbay and F. H. Sturgis, photographers; H. W. Libbert and Robert Odell, technical artists. The splendid subtitle paintings are from the brush of the celebrated artist, Ferdinand Pinney Earle.

The difference between a man and a child is that the man weighs more and isn't as happy.—Atchison Globe.

Township Vital Statistics 1921

Figures compiled by Mr. W. S. Hancock, Registrar of Vital Statistics, show a net gain of births over deaths in Roanoke Rapids Township of 278 during the year 1921. Births for the Township were 377 while the deaths were only 99. This is low death as well as a very high birth rate. The birth rate is approximately 54 to the 1000 population which is higher than the average for North Carolina and North Carolina itself has the highest birth rate in the United States. Race suicide has evidently obtained little hold in this community.

A CORRECTION

In the write up of the police court happenings in our issue of December 30, it was incorrectly stated that John Connor, charged with being drunk on the streets, had paid a fine of $5.00 and costs. The charge against Mr. Connor was for exceeding the speed limit with an automobile and we regret very much that the error occurred.
